GIFTS AND BEQUESTS TO AMERICAN LIBRARIES, 1913

In the following list of gifts and bequests to American libraries in 1913, are included gifts of money, buildings, building sites, books, miscellaneous and undescribed items.

The donations of the Carnegie Corporation in 1913 total $134,689 more than in 1912. Other gifts aggregate over a million dollars less, the 1912 list being greatly swelled by the Widener gift of $1,000,000 to Harvard; J. J. Hill's gift of $750,000 to St. Paul and other imposing amounts by donors to other libraries. In 1913 there were fewer conspicuously large gifts than usual, but on the other hand there was an unusually large number of bequests and gifts ranging from $25,000 to $50,000. Minneapolis and Sacramento are recipients from the Carnegie Corporation of $250,000 and $172,000 respectively, the gift to the former city being for branch libraries. The library of the Boston Medical Society received $85,000 by the will of Miss Ellen B. Wyman, and the library at Sag Harbor, New York, receives an endowment of $100,000 from Mrs. Russell Sage. The California state library receives from the Sutro estate the magnificent library gathered by Adolf Sutro and valued at $1,000,000. The bequest of $10,000 from the late Reuben Gold Thwaites to the Wisconsin Historical Society which he served so long and with such notable success is worthy of special mention.

Following is the financial summary:

From the Carnegie Corporation	$2,371,642.00
From other donors.....	2,056,599.68
Total	$4,428,241.68

In addition to these money gifts the following were reported:

Number of volumes as gifts.....	168,655
Sites for library buildings.....	12
Buildings presented for library purposes	10
Miscellaneous and undescribed items	46

Unless otherwise stated the gift is to the public library of the place indicated.
